

The scholarship mission

There is an inherited illness in society that can only be cured through education.

In 1944 the government admitted to this and proposed an all out attempt to implement a course of action. The Springfield model was introduced and here we are today.

This Scholarship is designed to rekindle that attempt and inspire future educators to come forward and create those lessons that will promote harmony and inclusion rather than schism.

The apple that is given (Sheldon statue) is meant to be shared. It represents the gift of knowledge that is respectfully given to the one that brought it forth. Knowledge is the key that opens all doors and invites everyone to enter. It is for Oswego to pass the key.
